The meeting of the Salem Woman's club to be held April 11, will be "Guest Day" when each member will bring a friend. At this time a musical program will be presented under the direction of Miss Minnetta Magers.

A farewell reception was given Mrs. H. D. Kimball Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. P. B. Southwick, members of the East Central Circle of the First Methodist church being asked. Mrs. W. F. Tucker, Mrs. H. T. Vandervert and Mrs. Richardson assisted the hostess.

Mrs. Kimball is to leave shortly for California with Dr. Kimball and much regret is expressed by their many friends in this city, where they have to long been prominent in church, educational and social activities. The Southwick home was beautifully decorated with cut flowers for the occasion, and a few musical selections and readings added much to the pleasure of the afternoon.

At Highland school Friday evening, March 20, one of the most enthusiastic Parent-Teacher associations in the city was organized, with the following officers: President, Rev. H. E. Pemberton; vice-president, W. P. Ringle; secretary, Mrs. C. H. Pickett; treasurer, J. B. Moorman; program committee, J. G. Scott, chairman, Miss Haddett and Mrs. H. E. Pemberton. Talks were made by Supt. Kuntz of the city schools and Rev. H. E. Pemberton. Mrs. C. H. Pickett gave an excellent paper on the subject of "Keeping Boys and Girls off the Streets" and Dr. H. C. Clements spoke on "Hygiene and House Sanitation." Prof. Kuntz suggested an excellent solution of the problem "What to Do With Boys and Girls Outside of School Hours," in his plans for home work and school gardens. Another meeting will be held Friday evening when the association will take up the matter of boosting garden clubs.

Garfield school held a parent-teacher meeting Monday evening, a pleasing feature of the meeting being a vocal solo by Mrs. O'Neil. Talks were given by Max O. Buren, Rev. H. E. Marshall, Supt. P. J. Kuntz, Sam Endicott, Rev. F. T. Porter, Joe Albert, E. T. Barnes, A. A. Lee, Dr. H. C. Eppley, and Miss Margaret Cosper.

Richmond and Grant schools Parent-Teacher associations met Wednesday evening with County Superintendent William Smith and City Superintendent Kuntz as speakers. Eight societies have been organized and much enthusiasm is manifested by both parents and teachers. One afternoon and one evening session each month places the meetings two weeks apart.

Willamette Institute of Scientific Research, "is the somewhat formidable title of a new organization at the university, perfected a few days ago. The officers are Herman Clark, president; W. Bartlett, vice-president; R. Pfaff, secretary; B. Neustal, treasurer. Other members are Miss Mildred McBride, W. Jeffrey, Harry Rice, Etel Osabere, Carrie Cooksey and Harold Jory.

"Spreading the News" is the title of a play to be staged at Willamette university before the Easter vacation, rehearsals having already begun. The play deals with Irish peasant life and is very humorous. The following students have been selected for the parts, all of them feminine roles: The Misses Florin Lachmund, Lulu Wesman, Fae Coyne, Miss Pelled, Miss Minton, Avace Ogden, Ruth Schultz, and Eva Grant.

The Yeoman lodge will hold their regular meeting Friday evening at their hall, after which there will be a social and tango too. A literary and musical program will also add to the pleasure of the evening.

A Parent-Teacher's meeting will be held at the Park school Friday at 3:30 p. m., when Rev. Perry Frederick Schrock will be the speaker. (The second and third grades will sing and there will be other musical numbers.

What's Color of Your Eyes?

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Black, blue, brown, gray or hazel, granted they are on of these colors so far as your mirror discloses are they not also another color which is not always apparent on the surface? Are they not sometimes, not often, but just sometimes, a little green? Deny it, and you deny that there is any jealousy in your makeup, proclaiming at the same time that you have a heart that is encrusted in snow and hung with icicles. And you deceive no one, for every one knows that the little green-eyed god has at some time occupied a shrine in every human heart.

Second Nature.

It is second nature to love, and it is their nature to be jealous. It is the part of wisdom to conceal this jealousy, but the beginners at the game, those who take love most seriously, and who regard it not as an incident in life, but all of life itself, are never wise in playing their parts. They love without restraint, they are just as uncontrolled in the fear, hatred and resentment of jealousy. The man and woman who are jealous, and show it, defeat their own happiness, but the objects of their adoration and suspicion have the satisfaction of knowing that it is not a love that has bloomed before.

A young girl writes me that she has every assurance of her sweetheart's love, but—

"There is a girl that cares a lot for him and she puts herself on him every time she sees him, and if we are at a party she hangs round him so that I never can have a pleasant conversation with him. He says he doesn't care for her, but I hear he is at her house when not at mine."

Another girl tells a story of jealousy as follows:

"He admits he writes to her, but says he never goes to see her. I scold him about it all the time. He calls on me every night in the week but one, and I am very suspicious. Do you think he goes to see her the night he is not with me?"

Another girl with as convincing proof of her sweetheart's love, wants to know how she can find out what he does the two evenings a week he is not with her. "It would break my heart," she writes "to find he calls on another girl."

Very Young.

The writers of these letters are very very young. If they were older they would know that no man's love is held by nagging; they would have learned that jealousy is a flattery a lover soon resents. Pleased at this because of its display, since it shows the girl love him, he grows angry when it exhibits itself in nagging, suspicion and distrust, and if he is as wise as his fathers he transfers his heart to a harbor of love that is more peaceful.

It is third nature to be jealous, but it is possible to get such control of this very human weakness that it takes to itself all the strength of indifference. The lover is longest the lover who is kept guessing; he is truest who has the girl to win, and every mark of jealousy is proof that she is already won and regards him as such a prize she loses all pride in her desire to keep him.

Green eyes, girls, are never the eyes that keep a lover.

When a man begins to suspect that a girl is taking him seriously he turns and runs from her as he would from the

THROW AWAY YOUR EYEGLASSES

A FREE PRESCRIPTION.

You Can Have Fitted and Use at Home. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye-weakness? If so, you will be glad to know that there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything with out any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days, everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Optina, fill a two ounce bottle with warm water, drop in one Optina tablet, and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you even a little take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

DEEP-ROOTED INDEED.

Pat, his face much swollen in consequence of an abscess in his mouth, boldly entered the dentist's house, eager to have the refractory tooth removed.

But when, perched high in the operating chair, he saw the gleaming forceps nearing his mouth, that erstwhile courage left him. Closing his lips with a snap, he firmly refused again to open them.

In vain the dentist tried persuasion. Then, being a man of resource, he pushed a pin into the patient's leg, and, as the Irishman opened his mouth to yell, quickly inserted a gag; then he pulled out the offending molar.

"Well," asked the dentist, when all was over, "It didn't hurt so very much after all—now, did it?"

Reluctantly and reflectively the patient answered: "No. But," he added, stroking his leg, "little did I think thin roots wint down that far."

BUSY AT INDEPENDENCE

NEARLY EVERY HOPYARD HAS LARGE FORCE OF MEN AT WORK AND TOWN GROWS.

Independence, March 25.—(Special)—The spring work is on in full blast in this vicinity and nearly every hop yard has a large force of men busy plowing, setting poles and tightening wires preparatory to caring for the on coming crop. Fruit trees are in full bloom and there is every prospect of a fine crop of fruit.

Many farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather to put up new modern fences, repaint, repair and make additions to their homes and out-buildings. Everywhere in the city here can be seen new homes in the process of construction and everyone here and in the vicinity seem to be in a cheerful and optimistic mood.

The pastures are coming on much earlier than usual and there is an abundance of feed of this kind already.

A force of men is at work laying a new water main across to old town so that in the near future every household there will have an abundance of city water for use in their homes and gardens.

FLY WISDOM.

FLIES FOLLOW ILTH FEVER FOLLOWS LIES

HERE are some fly proverbs that read like the wise bits in Ben Franklin's "Poor Richard's Almanac."

It is better to screen the cradle and wear a smile than scoff at the precaution and wear mourning.

Flies in the dining room usually precede nurses in the sickroom.

Screens in the windows prevent craps on the door.

Flies as well as bad water spread typhoid.

A fly in the milk may mean a member of a family in the grave.

A fly has natural enemies. The most persistent and most effective should be man.

It costs less to buy a screen door than to get sick and lay off for a month.

It's a short haul from the garbage can to the dining table via the fly route.

If at first you don't succeed, swat, swat, swat again.

Prevent the Fly—NOW.

PREVENT the fly and you won't have to swat him later. The time to fight him is before he becomes a fly. It is a problem of the elimination of filth where flies play, eat and breed. Do away with the breeding places and there will be no flies. Especial attention should be paid to stable and kitchen wastes. Clean up thoroughly around the stables and under the stable floors with the liberal use of chloride of lime.

Flies Greatest Germ Carriers.

The mosquito implants the germ of malaria, and flies carry the germs of tuberculosis as well as other diseases, such as typhoid and diphtheria. Don't wait until the warm weather to kill the fly.

Swat him now before the hoidovers begin to procreate.

ONIONS CREATE FAST COMPETITION

The first spring onions of the season were on the Klose menu on Monday evening and an endurance contest in disposing of the smelters ("which linger but do not inebriate") was speedily the event of the hour. Oblong was declared champion by three to the good with "Piggy" P. running a close second. "Shrimp" was awarded the booby prize with the Newberg orator embarrassingly close at the tape.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF BARBARA TENNANT

Barbara Tennant "Eclair Films"

"Tis said that personal charm is a wonderful asset in the making of popular screen idols, and this little theory is strongly borne out and personified in the case of Barbara Tennant, the delightfully charming leading woman whose magnetic personality and grace of manner has made her beloved by thousands of photoplay fans who daily watch for her appearance in the Eclair film productions. Miss Tennant's charm lies partly in her exquisitely beautiful features and her large dark and expressive eyes have aroused the admiration of countless Lotharios among photoplay patrons who have been moved by her glances on the screen to send her what a vulgarly termed, "dash notes," flowers and candy. Combined with her fascinating personal appearance she is a capable, hard-working, artist, and a product of the London stage. In an interview given a short time ago she graciously imparted the following facts:

"I was born in London, England, (the interviewer being a perfect gentleman did not request the date of Miss Tennant's birth) and immediately after leaving school commenced training for the stage. My first lessons were given under the direction of Mme. Cavallaze whom you doubtless recollect retired last year from the position of Ballet Mistress of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. My tuition with her was in all the branches of classical and modern dancing. During this time, however, I worked very hard along the lines of music and elocution. At the age of twelve I appeared as Solo Dancer in one of the great London pantomimes. This appearance, strange to say, was the outcome of a little performance I had given at a charity benefit in one of the London halls. A London theatrical manager, who was present, immediately offered me an engagement as "Premiere Danseuse" for his London pantomime. This piece enjoyed a long run in London and then went on tour among the principal towns of Great Britain. This was really the starting point of my career in legitimate theatrical work, and my ambition was fully aroused to pursue the path seriously and make a name for myself. However, I was kept at school until I was eighteen, but during the holidays acted in performances of nearly all of Shakespeare's plays, gradually working up and up, until I was cast for the leading part in each production. After leaving school I played in rapid succession in "The Private Secretary," "Charlie's Aunt," "The Rivals," "Romeo and Juliet," "His Majesty's Servants" and a host of other. Four years ago while visiting some friends in Canada, it struck me that this would be an ideal country for a road show. I gathered together a small company of talented artists and gave a series of recitals throughout the principal cities of eastern Canada. My part of the performance embodied selections from classical and standard plays, dramatic recitations and occasionally I varied the program with an original sketch. The reception I received I shall never forget, and there will always remain in my heart a soft spot for the people of Canada. The appreciative quality of Canadian audiences brings out the best there is in an artist, and I look forward to playing before them again some time. Shortly after my Canadian tour I was about to return to England when an accidental meeting with Daniel Frohman caused me to change my mind. He gave me a contract for the leading part in "The Seven Sisters" which role I played for three successive seasons. Toward the close of my third season with Mr. Frohman, the wonderful scope and breadth of motion pictures began to attract my attention. Previous to this I had never seen a motion picture but once in my life and that was a little girl, when I was taken by my nurse to a country fair in England. I remember well, receiving a severe scolding from my aunt for having done such an indecorously undignified thing. Coming to New York before my return to England I happened to meet an old friend on Broadway one day who informed me with much pride that she was working in the pictures. She practically forced me into a picture house on Broadway to view some films and my eyes were then really opened to a realization of what the motion picture really meant to both the artist and the public. I recollect that the picture I saw, had for its leading lady little Mary Pickford, whose wonderful ability greatly moved me. The following day I visited the Eclair plant at Fort Lee, N. J., and here I am today very happy in my work and extremely interested.

"I think the moving picture is one of the greatest inventions of the century for this reason—because it places entertainment, recreation and instruction within easy reach of everyone. I honestly appreciate the kindly letters of appreciation, of which I get very many from picture fans in various parts of the country. A large majority of these letters are illiterate, ill-spelt, and ungrammatical, but I believe them to be sincere, and I appreciate them a thousand times more than the perfumed notes and bouquets which were sent me when I was working on the legitimate stage in England."

LORD SEEKING OFFICE

FORMER SALEM RESIDENT WOULD BE ATTORNEY GENERAL OF OREGON.

Announcement was made last night by Attorney William P. Lord, Jr., that he will become a candidate on the republican ticket for the nomination for attorney general.

It is doubtful if there is an attorney in all Oregon any more widely or favorably known than Mr. Lord. He is a Salem boy, born and raised here. He attended the public schools in this city and afterward graduated from the Willamette university law school.

He commenced the practice of law almost immediately after his graduation and was most successful in the many intricate and technical cases he represented before circuit and supreme courts. Attorney Lord assisted in the compilation of the Lord's Oregon laws and was a main factor in revising the code throughout to meet the extreme congestion which followed after the sessions of the legislatures during the past few terms. At present Mr. Lord is engaged in the law business in Portland and he is making his residence in this city. His firm is known as Powers & Lord and it was through Attorney Lord that the monster drainage project in the Lake Labish territory was brought about. Attorney Lord secured the riparian rights to the Little Pudding river which passed through the property and thus enabled J. O. Hayes to complete the drainage project which has opened up for cultivation over 6000 acres of beaver dam land.

Attorney Lord is the son on the late Ex-Governor Lord, of this state, and for years resided in the Lord home at the intersection of High and Mission streets in South Salem.

The new candidate promises to carry out the following things if nominated and elected:

"If nominated and elected, I will, during my term of office, prosecute suits to regain vast tracts of public lands wrested from the people by speculators; demand speedy reclamation of arid lands and preservation of the rights of settlers. I will raise no claims for special assistants, and make no deals with corporations or special interests. I am opposed to useless commissions and extravagance at state institutions. I favor enforcing public rights in waterfront and tidelands; the election of non-partisan judiciary, and laws protecting women and children wage earners. I am in favor of tax exemptions, and will advocate new laws regulating tax collections, and abolish payment of tax penalties.

"After my name on the ballot I desire the following to be printed: 'Will serve the interests of the people.'"

A lively time ensued last Wednesday when a number of Freshmen girls insisted upon sitting on the Senior bench. By using sheer force a group of Junior girls succeeded in removing them.

EATING RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLE

A Prominent Physician's Advice.

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting, in many cases, is almost criminal. Get back to normal. To do so you must have the proper quantity of nourishment. You need it for brain or physical work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an abnormal secretion of acid in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean ulcers if not cancer of the stomach. Do not take patented medicines or peppin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a neutralizer of acid. Decidedly the best neutralizer is ordinary druggist's bisulphated magnesia. You can get it at any drug store for a few cents. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate."

SONG BOOK VERY FINE

WILLAMETTE ISSUES LITTLE VOLUME CONTAINING THIRTY DISTINCTIVE U EFFORTS.

The Willamette University Song Book made its appearance today. It contains some thirty distinctly Willamette songs including numbers as sung by the Willamette Glee Club and several snappy choruses used by the varsity rosters.

The music is all written in four parts and with the exception a re-arrangement of the music from "Italia," a Willamette song, all the music has been written by Willamette students. The book contains all the songs written for the freshmen glee since the institution of the annual contest.

The book has been published under the auspices of the Senior class. They have been to no end of trouble and expense in collecting the old music, having plates made for the music, etc. University students consider this the greatest thing that any class has ever done for the university and the song books are selling at an unprecedented rate.

Miss Helen Goltra charmingly entertained the third and fourth year Academy classes at her home Friday evening. Originality was the keynote of the evening's entertainment. Unique refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Goltra and Prof. and Mrs. De Bra were the patrons and patronesses.
